Pruning Evergreens.

From the Iowa State Register.] It is not safe to prune an evergreen when it is making feeble growth. But when vigorous, they can be cut freely and safely, and made to assume almost any shape. It is supposed by many that the cedar, savin, juniper, etc., can be pruned and trimmed into cones, pyramids, or any fancy shape. So also can all the pines. Ill-shaped or distorted trees which are unsightly in appearance can, in a few years, by skillful hands, be changed into objects of symmetry and beauty. Pines are naturally scanty when it is making feeble growth, But meat is placed in boiling water, the meat is placed in boiling water, the have been manies in a congulated the beauty. DAIN in the right side, under the I edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in genwith lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although be is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER

DR. C. McLane's LIVER PIELS, IN cases of Aque and Fever, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quining.
